Is Your Loved One Ready for Full-Time Care?

As loved ones age, the activities of daily living that they once took for granted may become difficult or impossible. It's hard to watch a beloved family member struggling to maintain independence, and your decision to seek additional care is never easy. But when you encounter challenges like these, it may be time to consider a full-time care option:

- Forgetfulness
- Inability to transfer from one position to another (ex., bed to chair)
- Medication mismanagement
- Limited mobility
- Risk of injury or falls
- Family members live far away and/or cannot provide the level of needed care

Which Full-Time Care Option Is Best?

As you consider care options, you may be unsure which one will best meet your loved one's needs. During your initial consultation we will help you understand the different levels of care & determine which one is the best fit.

Level 1: Home Care

Home care may be an option if your loved one is recovering from a surgery or you have family members in the area who are available to provide supplemental care. However, it can quickly become overwhelming and cost prohibitive as your loved one's need for assistance increases.

Level 2: Assisted Living

Assisted living helps your loved one maintain independence while also providing assistance with daily routines such as meal preparation, medication management, hygiene, and mobility.

Level 3: Skilled Nursing Facility

If your loved one needs the daily medical care of a nurse and cannot participate in dressing, bathing, or eating, a skilled nursing facility may be the best option.

It is so reassuring to know that Dad is being cared for in a loving Christian environment and being cared for with love and compassion.

Additional Care Options

There may be times when your family member would benefit from an assisted living environment without the need for long-term living arrangements. At Shepherd's Care, we are here to help your family by providing a residential care setting for individuals who meet the criteria for assisted living during the following special circumstances:

Respite Care

We offer temporary respite care for families who need extra help meeting the needs of a loved one. This option gives family members a break from care responsibilities so they can focus on being a son or daughter again.

Post-Rehabilitation Transition

If your loved one has had an injury or illness requiring a stay at a rehabilitation facility, he or she may not be ready to return to full self-care right away. We can help you bridge the gap between rehabilitation and independent living by providing needed assistance as your loved one completes the healing process.

Local Hospice Programs

When your loved one nears the end of life, we can help you consider difficult decisions and answer your questions. We help you connect with local hospice programs and provide a residential setting where your loved one can receive hospice care.

Our compassionate staff will help you assess your loved one's needs and answer your questions as you choose the care option that is right for you and your family.
